NOTE: Licenses are usually purchased through a clearinghouse like www.cartoonstock.com or www.istockphotos.com. Visit <http://www.stockphotorights.com/faq/> for more information.

I have not gained permission from the copyright owners to use images in my Presentation. I understand that my use of copyrighted images in my Presentation may exceed the limits of what can be considered educational fair use under the provisions of the Copyright Act. I acknowledge that INMM has informed me of this, and I accept personal liability including responsibility for any assessed fines for the possible infringement of fair use limits of the copyright, which may result from my reproduction/use of materials in my Presentation. I have also been advised that I should seek permission (purchase a license) from the holder of the copyright to reproduce this material.**

** All third party copyrighted material used in Presentations, including slides and/or handouts, must be accompanied by this Copyright Compliance form. Copyright protects “original works of authorship” that are fixed in a tangible form including works of fine, graphic and applied art; photographs, cartoons, prints, maps, technical and architectural drawings. Any pre-existing original work is considered copyrighted work from the moment of creation, and it requires permission from the copyright owner to use or copy the image. Obtaining an image from the internet via sources such as Google, social media platforms or other websites does not negate nor override the copyright owner’s rights. INMM reserves the right, at its sole discretion, not to distribute Presentations deemed a risk for copyright infringement. The distribution of Presentations by INMM in no way absolves or assumes the liability of the author for the Presentation, including responsibility for any assessed fines for the possible infringement of fair use limits of the copyright, which may result from reproduction/use of materials in the Presentation.
